First PFS Seminar in North Carolina — a Success

Twenty factory-built construction personnel participated in the PFS Training Seminar held at the Marriott Raleigh Crabtree Valley Hotel in Raleigh, NC on November 10 & 11, 2005. This was the first PFS training seminar ever held in North Carolina. With the positive comments received from seminar attendees, future seminars in that area are anticipated.

Dean Williams, Code Compliance Manager for Fibrebond Corporation, Minden, LA, told Encore, “The seminar provided important information on electrical and plumbing requirements for our State of Louisiana as well as other states. I feel my company and I benefited significantly from it, and I hope to participate in another PFS training seminar in the future.”

“The seminar was well-organized and very beneficial to manufacturing personnel,” said Dale Cooper, Continuous Improvement Manager at Champion Homes of Tennessee. “All the presentations were very good. Keith Lofland speaking on the National Electrical Code, and Ken Sagan who presented an overview of the International Residential Code plumbing requirements both did an excellent job.” Cooper also hopes to return to another PFS training seminar someday.

PFS Training Seminar #73 for Inspectors, Trainees and Maintenance of In-Plant Inspectors, will be held Thursday and Friday, January 19 & 20, 2006 at the Atherton Hotel, State College, PA .
